FEEDBACK

Our workshop on display ideas in October was a great success according to the feedback we got from the participants. I have included some of these for your interest.

Excellent, 1st workshop I've attended on this subject. I have learned lots and shall be able to apply it to my work situation.

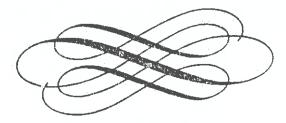

This was an EXCELLENT workshop one of the best I've ever attended. The ideas on display today, and talked about/written in the handout, were great especially because they were REAL - and not just "good ideas" that had never ever seen the light of day.

Excellent handout!

Thoroughly enjoyed the presentation, it was well organized and delivered. Most appreciated was reassurance that we all have the skills necessary to put displays together.

This workshop was well attended by other groups as well as Library Techs. We hope that if you missed this one that you will be able to join us for our upcoming ones. They not only offer great formal instruction and ideas, but give us a chance to meet with one another and do a bit of networking. Look forward to seeing all of you soon.

Canadian Library Journal, December 1986 had an interesting article on Fighting Illiteracy: the Role of Library Technicians. The article was written by SHEILA BUTLER, and is the second runner-up in the third annual CJL Student Article Contest. The article was written while whe was enrolled in the Library Techniques Program, Seneca College. Sheila is currently working as a library technician at Unionville High School in Markham, Ont. An excerpt from this article is included in this copy of the newsletter for your perusal. "Increased hiring of library technicians could benefit literacy programs. These cost-efficient paraprofessionals are a viable link between librarians, clerical workers, community volunteers and illiterate students." The article goes on to explain in detail the tasks that a technician can perform to aid the illiterate student and the team set out to teach him. If you haven't yet seen the article, we highly recommend it. We would also like to take the opportunity of congratulating Sheila on her work.

Also to be comgratulated is FRED MCINTOSH, former professor and Director of the Library Technology Program at Lakehead University. Fred has recently been appointed Cheif Librarian of LU's Chancellor Paterson Library. He will be missed in his former capacity, but we all wish him well in his new endeavours.
